bs4.BeautifulSoup
def __call__(*args, kwargs)
A data structure representing a parsed HTML or XML document.

Most of the methods you'll call on a BeautifulSoup object are inherited from PageElement or Tag.

Internally, this class defines the basic interface called by the tree builders when converting an HTML/XML document into a data structure. The interface abstracts away the differences between parsers. To write a new tree builder, you'll need to understand these methods as a whole.

These methods will be called by the BeautifulSoup constructor:
  * reset()
  * feed(markup)

The tree builder may call these methods from its feed() implementation:
  * handle_starttag(name, attrs) # See note about return value
  * handle_endtag(name)
  * handle_data(data) # Appends to the current data node
  * endData(containerClass) # Ends the current data node

No matter how complicated the underlying parser is, you should be able to build a tree using 'start tag' events, 'end tag' events,
'data' events, and "done with data" events.

If you encounter an empty-element tag (aka a self-closing tag, like HTML's  tag), call handle_starttag and then handle_endtag.

태그 속성 활용: select

In [15]:
BeautifulSoup 명령어인 select('조건')을 이용하면 HTML 내에서 입력한 조건을 만족하는 태그를
조건 부분에는 해당 태그의 태그명이나 속성값을 지정하거나 태그 간의 구조를 지정할 수도 있고

In [16]:
태그명으로 태그 찾기

tags_p=soup.select('p')

print('tags_span값:',tags_span) print('Wn')
print('tags_p값:', tags_p)

ids_fruits1=soup.select('#fruits1')
id(태그명): ids_fruits1=soup.select('#fruits1')
id값은 특정 대상을 지정하기 위해 사용되므로 HTML 내에서 한 번만 사용 가능합니다.
